Thomas Hunter to Bring Valuable Kennel to Richmond's Initial Dog Show.

WOMEN EXHIBITORS

Will Show Dalmatians and Fluffy Pomeranians-Thomas F. Ryan to Send German Sheep Dogs.

High class dogs, worth thousands of dollars, will be exhibited next week at the Virginia State Fair, and society folk of New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Wilmington, Del., and other cities will put their kennels in competition with the best kennels owned by Virginians. Some of the coilies were purchased in England at from $2,000 to $3,000 each, while the champion Pomeranians, German sheep dogs, Scottlish deerhounds and old English sheep dogs were purchased at fabulous prices.

Among the New York people who will have exhibits are Dr. E. H. Berendsohn, Miss Marion Denison, Mrs. Clendennen Ryan and Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Lederer. They will be here personally to look after their kennels.

Yesterday Director Lewis, of the concessions committee, moved his office and clerical force to the Fair Grounds, so that he would be in close touch with the work along the Midway, where booths are going up like magic. "Teddy" Breeden, of Atlanta, arrived yesterday, and entered upon his usual duty of attending to the ticket problem. Breeden is an expert in this line, and he has complete authority and control of the State Fair tickets. Announcement was made yesterday that no tickets or passes would be issued to the grounds on Sunday. Last year more than 7,000 people swarmed there and interrupted the work, and to prevent a repetition the directors decided to close the gates on Sunday.

Besides Professor Hutchison's bal.

Mr. Untermyer disagreed flatly with a scheme advanced by Senators Reed, Hitchcock and Bristow, under which the government would issue currency directly to the individual banks on their assets up to 75 per cent of their capital stock, with a provision for a 50 per cent gold reserve. This plan, he said, would be inelastic and impracticable.

of Conclusion on October 23.

Again the Jews, the world over, are preparing to observe the holy season, which begins with Rosh Hashanah, or New Year's Day, on Wednesday evening and ends with the Feast of Conclusion, on the evening of October 23. In the Jewish tradition, the Rosh Hashanah marks the anniversary of the creation of the world, supposed to have taken place 5.674 years ago. The present Rosh Hashanah, therefore, will mark the beginning of the year 5674. The change of date, however, is of little or no importance, and if the Jewish New Year's Day had no further significance, its appeal to the Jew would be very faint indeed. It is not the change of year, but the change of life that this day stresses, that makes in the Jewish cally differs from the civil New Year's lattle fix stand out as one of the holiest days in the Jewish callendar. Herein it radically differs from the civil New Year; it is a day set apart for introspection and self-examination. The sacred character of the day is implied in the two other names by which it is known, viz., the Day of Memorial and the Day of the Blowing of the Trumpets. In the first place, it is the Day of Memorial, or Remembrance. As such, it calls upon the Jew to remember the divine purpose of his life; secondly, it is the Day of the Blowing of the Trumpets. Its purpose is to rouse Israel from his self-complacency and stir him to high resolves and nobler deeds.

Day of Atonement.

The Rosh Hashanah derives its significance from the fact that it is but the introduction to the Day of Atonement, which follows ten days later.

The essential ceremony of the services in the synagogue on Rosh Hashanah is the blowing of the trumpet, in accordance with the injunction in Leviticus xxiii. 24, which reads: "In the seventh month, on the first day of the month, shall ye have a Sabbath, a memorial of blowing of trumpets, and holy convocation."

Horses Not War Munitions.

Washington, September 29.—Horses and saddles, hay and other feedstuffs intended for the Mexican Federal army or the revolutionists are not munitions of war, and may be exported from the United States into Mexico without restriction. This decision to-day was given by Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Hamilin in interpreting the President's proclamation of March 4, 1912, forbidding the exportation of munitions of war to Mexico.

Mr. Hamilin's decision followed an opinion by Attorney-General McReynolds, which held that munitions of war made contraband by the proclamation were "articles manufactured and primarily and ordinarily used for military purposes in time of war."

The administration has reluctantly concluded that at present there is no constitutional way to open communication on an official basis.

This fact developed to-day as the result of an inquiry as to whether John Lind, President Wilson's special commissioner to Mexico, was planning to communicate with the Constitutionalists with a view to obtaining a promise from them to respect a truce while the projected October elections in Mexico are under way. or the revolutionists are not munitions of war, and may be exported from the United States into Mexico without restriction.
